

SPEAKER DOCK WITH BASS UNIT!

GEAR4 DUO

New take on the tired old iPod dock. This is a 2.1 speaker system with the bass unit behind a satellite speaker. So you can blast out tunes in tandem, or unclip the front unit and use it as a portable speaker for when you want to travel with your 'Pod. And don't need bass, presumably.

Expect to pay: £149.99

PARROT FRAME

Most digital photo frames take about 20 seconds to design – man draws oblong, eats pie. Parrot, however, gave this task to an actual designer, who came up with this – a bluetooth-packing frame you wouldn't be embarrassed to look at – while all those stag night pictures scroll humiliatingly past.

Expect to pay: £249.99

SQISH

Brilliant little satellite dish that gets around the problem of them usually being so damn ugly. Send a digital snap of the wall you intend to put your dish on and they'll stick it to the front of their plastic receiver, making it (almost) invisible.

Expect to pay: £149

NOMIS FOOTBALL BOOTS

Football boot-makers Nomis reckon their latest product will bring an end to metatarsal breaks via a combination of redesigned sole plates and placement of studs to remove pressure on those flimsy bones. Will our preening superstars swap safety for lucrative sponsorship deals? Um...

Expect to pay: from £110

TOSHIBA PORTEGE M800

Another dinky ultraportable lappy from Tosh. Dinky as it weighs 2kg (heftier than the MacBook Air, but it does have a disc drive), yet still packs a 13.3-inch screen, full-size keyboard and large touchpad. Should be cheaper than the Apple, too.

Expect to pay: TBC (it's out in the autumn)
